

DIALECTICS EAST AND WEST

FALL 2016: DIALECTICS OF CAPITALISM

Tuesdays at 4pm in Hagerty Hall 145

From the first barter exchanges between hunter-gatherer communities until the current economic crises, the movement of political economy has meant increasing separation from nature and the replacement of human community by relationships of exchange and domination. As capital comes into its own it becomes the dominant subject of the production process; more and more autonomous, a kind of Frankenstein, capital separates us from the world, ourselves, and from each other.

Faculty, students, and Columbus residents are welcome for weekly discussions:

- October 25: Introduction
- November 1: Recognition
- November 8: Alienation
- November 15: Representation
- November 22: Commodity
- November 29: Money
- December 6: Capital

For suggested readings and details visit:

<http://go.osu.edu/dialectics>

SPRING 2016: DIALECTICS OF CONSCIOUSNESS

SPRING 2017: DIALECTICS OF THE COMMUNITY