

These are the experimental manipulations used in:

Craig, M. A., & Richeson, J. A. (in press). Not in my backyard! Authoritarianism, social dominance orientation, and support for strict immigration policies at home and abroad. Political Psychology. doi: 10.1111/pops.12078

The final version of the article is available at:

<http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/pops.12078/abstract>

---

Studies 1 & 2 Israel Law Condition

New Law Focuses on Immigration

NPR Staff

A new law put in place in the West Bank requires authorities to question people suspected of not possessing an Israeli-issued residency permit. The West Bank has an estimated 460,000 immigrants without residency papers and is Israel's busiest border crossing point. The new law is a sweeping measure that defines anyone not holding an Israeli-issued permit to reside in the West Bank as an "infiltrator immigrant" and specifically requires immigrants to have proof of their immigration status. It also requires Israeli military police to 'make a reasonable attempt' to determine the residency status of a person if there is a reason to suspect that he or she is an illegal immigrant.

An Israeli military spokesman, Lt. Col. Avital Leibovich, said it would help the military to drive illegal immigrants from the nation, saying, "This law protects every Israeli citizen from a dangerous and unacceptable situation."

There has been a great deal of controversy over this law, with critics and human rights activists stating the new law will be used to target Palestinians living in the West Bank and will deter Palestinians from reporting crimes.

Studies 1 & 2 Arizona Law Condition

New Law Focuses on Immigration

NPR Staff

A new Arizona bill signed into law requires police to question people suspected of being in the country illegally. Arizona has an estimated 460,000 illegal immigrants and is the nation's busiest border crossing point. The Arizona Immigration Law is a sweeping measure that makes it a crime under state law to be in the country illegally and specifically requires immigrants to have proof of their immigration status. It also requires police officers to 'make a reasonable attempt' to determine the immigration status of a person if there is a reason to suspect that he or she is an illegal immigrant.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Russell Pearce, said it would help police to drive illegal immigrants from the state, saying, "This law protects every Arizona citizen from a dangerous and unacceptable situation."

There has been a great deal of controversy over this law, with critics and civil rights activists stating the new law will lead to racial profiling and will deter Hispanics from reporting crimes.

Study 3 Singapore Law Condition

New Law Focuses on Immigration

Associated Press

A recent Singapore bill signed into law requires authorities to question people suspected of being in the country illegally. Singapore has an estimated 460,000 immigrants without residency papers. The Singapore immigration law is a sweeping measure that makes it a crime to be in the country without a Singapore-issued permit and specifically requires immigrants to have proof of their immigration status. It also requires police officers to 'make a reasonable attempt' to determine the immigration status of a person if there is a reason to suspect that he or she is an illegal immigrant.

The bill's sponsor, Hsien Tan, said it would help police to drive illegal immigrants from the nation, saying, "This law protects every Singaporean citizen from a dangerous and unacceptable situation."

There has been a great deal of controversy over this law, with critics and civil rights activists stating the new law will lead to racial profiling of Bangladeshis living in Singapore and will deter Bangladeshis from reporting crimes.

Study 3 Arizona Law Condition

New Law Focuses on Immigration

Associated Press

A recent Arizona bill signed into law requires authorities to question people suspected of being in the United States illegally. Arizona has an estimated 460,000 immigrants without residency papers and is the nation's busiest border crossing point. The Arizona immigration law is a sweeping measure that makes it a crime under state law to be in the country illegally and specifically requires immigrants to have proof of their immigration status. It also requires police officers to 'make a reasonable attempt' to determine the immigration status of a person if there is a reason to suspect that he or she is an illegal immigrant.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. Russell Pearce, said it would help police to drive illegal immigrants from the state, saying, "This law protects every Arizona citizen from a dangerous and unacceptable situation."

There has been a great deal of controversy over this law, with critics and civil rights activists stating the new law will lead to racial profiling of Hispanics living in Arizona and will deter Hispanics from reporting crimes.