

Discourse Symposium

What is discourse and how do we use it?

This symposium examines the use and implementation of 'discourse' across disciplinary and methodological boundaries. How does our understanding of 'discourse' influence our work and research? How might these differences help us to reach certain commonalities across disciplines? This two-hour symposium brings OSU scholars together, working in various methodological boundaries (Conversation Analysis, Pragmatics, Sociolinguistics and Folklore) in order to engage with these and other questions.

Featured Speakers: Dr. Amy Shuman (English), Dr. Leslie Moore (Teaching and Learning), Dr. Scott Schwenter (Spanish and Portuguese), Dr. Lauren Squires (English), Dr. Pat Enciso (Teaching and Learning), Dr. David Bloome (Teaching and Learning), Dr. Carmen Taleghani-Nikazm (Germanic Languages and Literatures)

Monday March 17th 10:00am-12:00pm

Barbie Tootle Room, Ohio Union

Ohio State

Questions? Contact Michael Furman
Furman.25@osu.edu