

ReNew: Reflections on Sustainability, Identity, and Social Change in the City

The 25th Anniversary
MUNDO Fall Break
Experience

Discussion and Reflection Guide

MUNDO NYC Fall Break Experience 2022 participants will explore how to name and describe:

- Several ways to interact respectfully with others who have differing values, ideas, and beliefs, and why such actions are important. (MUNDO Learns.)
- Several types of social change commitments. (MUNDO Learns.)
- Several ways to collaborate with others to achieve outreach and inclusion-based common purpose. (MUNDO Serves.)
- Several ways to challenge assumptions and biases within diverse contexts (MUNDO Leads.)

- As we begin our exploration of New York ~~what are your initial thoughts about the City?~~
- Have there been any sights or sounds in the City that were different than you expected?
- Was there anything that challenged a possible assumption or bias you had about NYC?
- How might the High Line project represent different groups and individuals coming together for a common purpose?
- Open Space: What other thoughts or comments do you have?

- What are examples of social change commitments presented in the Museum of the Chinese in America?
- What did you learn from our walking tour, museum visit, service project, and the Broadway show "A Strange Loop" that could be used to challenge assumptions or biases about specific individuals or groups?
- What examples of collaboration between different groups to achieve a common purpose did you notice related to today's nontraditional discovery experiences?
- What are some examples of working with others with differing values, ideas or beliefs that are presented in the MOCA museum and the Broadway show "A Strange Loop"? Why are these examples important?
- Open Space: What other thoughts or comments do you have?
