

Publishing a Literary Journal (Arts and Sciences 1100)

A one-credit 7-week class

Wed.5:30-7:20 Beginning 2/27

In this 7-week class, we will learn the ins and outs of publishing a literary journal, and, at the end of the class, publish an online edition that features, poetry, fiction, life-writing, photography, sound art, video, and drawing. Collectively we will:

- study several online journals
- write and distribute a call for submissions
- jury the submissions
- edit the content working closely with contributors and co-editors
- conceive, design, and publish our own online journal

No previous experience in editing or publishing is necessary, but a feel for and love of literature, as well as an interest in contemporary writing, is essential. Students taking the class who are also creative writers are welcome to submit their own work for the journal, but all work will be evaluated by the whole class.

D. B. Ruderman

questions: ruderman.4@osu.edu