

Ohio Mass Spectrometry Symposium

October 14 & 15, 2024 | Ohio Union

The 21th Annual Ohio Mass Spectrometry Symposium will be held at the Ohio Union in Columbus, Ohio, on October 14-15, 2024. OMSS will be hosted by the OSU Campus Chemical Instrument Center.

The purpose of the two-day event is to provide an opportunity for academic and industrial researchers in the region to present their findings, share information, discuss research challenges with colleagues, and spark new collaborations in the field of mass spectrometry and its rapidly advancing applications and technologies. Key topics include Advanced Ionization Techniques and Instrumentation, Metabolomics, Proteomics, MS imaging techniques, Native MS, and other MS applications. The planned agenda includes: invited keynote and plenary speakers; oral and poster presentations (submitted abstracts); Lunch and Learn sessions; and networking opportunities. We anticipate around 150 participants

Benefits of sponsorship

As a sponsor, your brand will be presented to researchers and students with interests in mass spectrometry and its applications. Opportunities for networking, sharing of information, and student career and intern recruitment will benefit all involved.
