WE SAY TOMATO. NCI SAYS EXCEPTIONAL.

At The Ohio State University Comprehensive Cancer Center – Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital and Richard J. Solove Research Institute, we're discovering new ways to prevent, detect, treat and cure cancer. Like our "Crops to Clinic" program that brings together researchers from the College of Medicine, College of Food, Agriculture and Environmental Science, College of Education and Human Ecology, College of Public Health and College of Biological Sciences to examine the cancer-preventing powers of food. Our researchers discovered that tomatoes have amazing powers to fight prostate cancer. As part of one of the largest public universities, we have some of the brightest minds in cancer, conducting some of the world's most powerful and innovative cancer research. All part of the work that earned us the National Cancer Institute's highest rating—exceptional.
